

Facts about the Healing Healthcare Partnership™

In November 2011, the Joint Commission Center for Transforming Healthcare launched its Healing Healthcare Partnership™, a campaign that brings together accredited health care organizations and industry to improve patient safety and lower the cost of health care. Health care organizations are seeking specific guidance on how to solve health care's most critical safety and quality problems. To help solve these persistent problems, Joint Commission accredited organizations are encouraged to join the Healing Healthcare Partnership campaign and to use the resources of the Center, including the Targeted Solutions Tool™. These resources were developed and tested in collaboration with leading health care organizations to help understand the specific underlying causes of these problems, and to allow other health care organizations to customize solutions targeted to those causes at their organizations. With the support of the Center's funding partners, the Center solutions are provided at no added cost to health care organizations. Center resources available to Joint Commission accredited organizations include:

- Targeted Solutions Tool \(TST\)™ – available via Joint Commission Connect
- Center solutions (i.e., hand hygiene, wrong site surgery, hand-off communications) available on the Center website
- Center involvement – organizations are invited to pilot test solutions or become a participating organization
- Center staff are available to answer questions about Center projects and how Center solutions can be used at your organization

How to join the Healing Healthcare Partnership

Joint Commission accredited health care organizations can join the campaign through Joint Commission Connect and will be publicly recognized on the Center's website. By joining, organizations are simply stating that they support the goal to improve patient safety and lower the cost of health care.
